As Davis observed, "It was truly in the Wisconsin law-in-action tradition: a candid discussion of how Taiwan's recent reforms were working in fact, and what additional steps might be realistic and effective in the future."

WICGI is an innovative response to an increasingly globalized economy. The focus of WICGI is to help both emerging and established markets in Asia to develop structures that will help investors feel comfortable investing in them.

Credit for the idea of WICGI goes to Dean Davis, according to both Johnson and Irish, while Irish himself drew on innumerable relationships he has built up in Asia over the last 20 years. Johnson, who is former Chief Legal Counsel and head of the corporate governance program for the State of Wisconsin Investment Board (the ninth largest public pension fund in the U.S.), was able to bring major international investor representatives to participate in the Taipei conference from the Netherlands, U.S., U.K., Japan, and Hong Kong. The Asian Corporate Governance Association assisted in organizing the Taipei conference, and financial sponsorship and legwork were contributed by the Fuhwa Cultural and Educational Foundation and the Taiwan Securities Association.

WICGI is currently planning a conference in China in the fall, and will go back to Taiwan by invitation for a follow-up conference, as a result of the success of this year's event.
