PROFESSIONAL LEADERSHIP EXPERIENCE

Fred W. & Vi Miller Dean and Professor of Law 2011-2020
University of Wisconsin Law School, Madison, Wisconsin

Decisive, innovative, creative, dynamic and collaborative leader of renowned academic institution with $35 million annual budget and 200 employees. Strong fundraiser, relationship-builder and executive with high integrity and powerful follow-through. Achieved the following outcomes:

Navigated transition to online learning while supporting students, faculty and staff during the COVID-19 epidemic. Managed unprecedented challenge of the pandemic while equipping faculty to deliver excellent remote instruction, creating remote learning and employment opportunities for students, and building new pathways for remote engagement, recruitment and community building.

Successfully led Law School through historically unprecedented downturn in applications, sustaining excellence, diversity, reputation and student access. Through creative, team-driven leadership, engagement with stakeholders, and collaboration with institutional partners, steered a course through five-year national downturn in law school applications while sustaining student quality and diversity, strategically adding excellent faculty hires, and improving student services and employment outcomes. Student-centered leadership involved both hands-on activities, including rich engagement with student recruitment, wellness and career development, and articulating and holding team accountable for focused priorities.

Built targeted, active and successful fundraising enterprise for the Law School. Radically increased level of donor contacts and stewardship; created new activities to support and advance philanthropy, including an annual two-day Dean's Summit for leadership and legacy donors and annual event to build student culture of gratitude and philanthropy. Stepped up alumni engagement opportunities and activities; updated and improved quality and frequency of print and online content; created and authored quarterly e-newsletter for leadership donors with 50% click-through rate. Developed strong advancement team, integrating campus partners and internal staff, to run effective major gifts, leadership annual giving, and annual fund enterprises. Led team in developing strategies to engage major gift donors and increase participation and annual giving.

Raised $42 million, nearly doubling endowment, in campus-wide comprehensive campaign. Gifts included the Law School's largest gifts ever from a living donor and significant commitments to faculty (including endowment gifts to create a Distinguished Research Chair, numerous endowed faculty fellowships, and gifts to establish the first fully funded chair at the University of Wisconsin named for a Black faculty member) and a rich range of endowed scholarships and programs.

Led processes of curricular reform and strategic planning. Guided revision of first-year J.D. curriculum, managing stakeholders through collaborative two-year process that produced a more writing-driven curriculum with greater opportunity for student choice and early specialization, and inclusive, participatory strategic planning process which, through collaboration with faculty, staff, students and alumni, developed and affirmed institutional mission, priorities and metrics for assessing success.

Supported faculty excellence, diversity and opportunity. Successfully retained excellent faculty with outside offers; reinstated lapsed sabbatical program; created program for providing top-up support that enabled faculty to accept prestigious research fellowships; mobilized university and unit resources to provide strong start-up packages for junior faculty and effective targeted opportunity hiring of faculty from underrepresented groups. Supported a strong program of mentorship, support and guidance for new faculty through the tenure and promotion process.

Revamped administrative structures and oversight. Regularized financial management; brought externally managed revenue in-house; clarified and strengthened lines of institutional fiscal clarity and accountability. Created committee process for allocating student activity resources aligned with institutional priorities. Rebuilt Board of Visitors as working board, using its talents to advance the Law School's interests; worked with leadership to revise bylaws, update financial management and investment strategies, and reinstitute Board terms, facilitating a more diverse, innovative, flexible and actively engaged Board.

Improved employment outcomes for graduates. Revamped career office staffing and structure; supported Associate Dean and staff in creating vigorous program of student engagement and education for professional success. Outputs included steady improvement in placement outcomes, better tracking and consistent data reporting and assessment, and a more supported, curated and positive student experience.

Improved visibility and reputation of institution. Increased law school's national reputation, recognition and national profile. Managed the Law School's ranking through careful attention to metrics and inputs. Built effective external affairs and communications enterprise. Successfully increased press visibility and social media presence; drove systematic process of generating nominations and recognition of faculty, staff, students and alumni for competitive national, state, professional and university awards and grants; vigorously engaged with legislators, Regents, alumni, the judiciary, and the professional community within the state and beyond, telling the Law School's story and building relationships and connections.

Engaged collaboratively in campus-wide initiatives. Played a leading campus role in developing strategies and policies to address alcohol use, sexual assault, violence, and harassment; served on search and screen committee for Vice Provost for Diversity and Inclusion; developed and led cross-campus initiative on coordinating graduate and professional experiences in rural Wisconsin. Engaged, trusted and respected senior leader.
